School of Sensual Massage

Courses Events Community

Touch & Turn On Courses

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS | Men learning to give sensual massage to men

These questions and answers are for men considering the Touch & Turn On Experiential, Foundation, Intermediate and Advanced courses. The exact practical elements depend on course level, student readiness and the male receiver's consent. Please ask Colin about any question not covered here.

Q1. Who are the Touch & Turn On courses designed for?

For adult men who want to become more knowledgeable, confident and creative when giving sensual massage to other men. You may be gay, bisexual, heterosexual, questioning, single or in a relationship. No particular identity or previous experience is required.

Q2. Do I need previous massage experience?

No. I teach progressively, beginning with relaxation, whole-body massage, communication and confident touch before introducing more intimate techniques appropriate to your chosen course.

Q3. Whom will I practise on?

I can arrange an adult male volunteer receiver who has agreed to take part in practical training and provide feedback. Alternatively, you may ask to bring your male partner or a male friend who wishes to receive the massage. Arrangements are confirmed in advance.

Q4. Will the male volunteer be naked?

Nudity may form part of practical demonstrations and massage, according to the exercise and what the receiver has agreed to. Any intimate touch is discussed beforehand; he can change his mind at any time.

Q5. Do I have to be naked while giving the massage?

No. You may remain clothed throughout the course. Being undressed is never a requirement for learning to give a massage.

Q6. Will I learn about male anatomy and the natural arousal process?

Yes. We explore male anatomy, relaxation, anticipation, sensitivity, communication and the physical and psychological aspects of male arousal, including how responses vary from one man to another.

Q7. Will the male volunteer become sexually aroused?

He may, particularly during agreed intimate exercises, but arousal and erections are not guaranteed. We rely on communication rather than interpreting an erection or other physical response as consent.

Q8. What if I develop an erection while giving the massage?

This can happen in an intimate learning environment and need not be embarrassing. An erection does not create an expectation of reciprocal touch or sexual activity. The focus remains on learning and agreed boundaries.

Q9. Will I learn intimate genital massage techniques?

Yes. Foundation covers a structured routine with agreed penis and scrotum massage. Intermediate introduces edging and introductory prostate massage; Advanced includes mutual-oral positioning. Techniques are taught only where appropriate to the student's progress and the receiver's consent.

Q10. Will I learn how to help a man experience orgasm?

I teach attentive touch, pacing and communication that may support pleasure and arousal. Orgasm and ejaculation are never guaranteed and should not be treated as performance targets.

Q11. Will I learn how to give oral stimulation to a man?

Oral stimulation and mutual-oral positioning are Advanced-level elements, rather than Foundation or Intermediate requirements. We can discuss your interests in advance; any practical activity depends on the receiver's explicit agreement, suitability, hygiene and the teaching plan. You never have to give or receive oral stimulation.

Q12. Will I learn how to edge a man slowly towards orgasm?

Yes. Edging and controlled pauses are listed in the Intermediate course. I explain how to use pacing, changes in stimulation and communication to help a man enjoy anticipation without treating orgasm as compulsory. The techniques may also be revisited in Advanced training.

Q13. Will prostate massage be taught, and can I decide on the day whether to include it?

Introductory prostate massage is an Intermediate-level element, with earlier external perineal and anal-area techniques covered in Foundation. You can express a preference beforehand and decide on the day whether you feel comfortable proceeding. However, it is not guaranteed: both you and the male receiver must consent to the specific activity, and Colin must consider hygiene, health, readiness and the available lesson time. You can also decline or stop at any stage.

Q14. Will I learn about ejaculation and different male sexual responses?

Yes. We discuss erections, arousal, orgasm and ejaculation, including the fact that these do not always occur together. Every man responds differently, and the receiver’s comfort and consent always come first.

Q15. Will I learn to give pleasure without penetration?

Absolutely. Whole-body massage, relaxation, anticipation, external touch and communication can all be deeply fulfilling without penetration.

Q16. Can the male volunteer massage or touch me in return?

Not automatically. In some Intermediate exercises, reciprocal touch may be part of the agreed learning objectives. Any touch directed towards you must be discussed and consented to separately. You can decline touch at any time.

Q17. Will Colin demonstrate the techniques before I practise?

Yes. I explain and demonstrate where appropriate, then guide you as you practise. As your confidence develops, I increasingly observe and offer constructive feedback.

Q18. Can I bring my husband, boyfriend, partner or male friend?

Yes, subject to confirming the course format. Learning with someone you know can help you understand his individual preferences and develop confidence together.

Q19. Can sensual massage help if my male partner has lost interest in sex?

It can offer a different way to reconnect without pressure to perform. Desire can be affected by health, medication, stress and relationship circumstances. The course is educational, not a guaranteed treatment.

Q20. Is the course suitable for men of any age?

Yes, for adults aged 18 and over. Techniques and positions can be adapted for comfort, mobility and confidence.

Q21. What are the different course levels?

The three-hour Experiential Session provides an introduction. Foundation is six hours, normally two private three-hour modules, and teaches a structured male-to-male sensual massage routine. Intermediate and Advanced training build on these skills with additional techniques and understanding. Please refer to the current Touch & Turn On brochures for each level.

Q22. Can I train to give male-to-male sensual massage professionally?

Please discuss your aims with me. We can explore the practical, interpersonal and business skills required for professional practice; completing one course alone should not be taken as a professional qualification.

Q23. Is the course confidential, and can I decline anything?

Yes. Privacy and consent are central. You and the receiver may decline any activity or stop at any time. I will explain how any application details or images are shared before doing so.

Q24. Can I request specific techniques to be shown?

Yes, please tell me what you hope to learn. I can explain what fits the course and agreed boundaries. I do not teach role-play or BDSM techniques.

Q25. Can I request a particular age or type of male volunteer?

You may mention a preference, but I cannot promise a particular age, appearance or type. Volunteers are selected from those available and willing, and I will try to take reasonable preferences into account.

Q26. Who will see my application photo?

If a volunteer-matching process requires your photo or basic application details to be circulated to registered male volunteers, I will explain that process to you. Please check the current application privacy information before submitting.

Q27. What type of photo should I include?

A clear, recent, clothed photograph showing your face is best, ideally looking towards the camera. You may send more than one for selection.

Q28. Do I have to complete the course within a certain period?

Foundation and Intermediate training normally consist of two three-hour modules each, generally completed within one month. For combined, Advanced or professional training, please confirm the timetable and current cancellation policy before booking.

Q29. What if I feel nervous, become unexpectedly aroused or want to pause?

You can pause, remain clothed, change the exercise or stop at any time. Feeling nervous or aroused does not oblige you to continue. We can focus on non-intimate whole-body massage and return to other techniques only if everyone is comfortable.

Q30. What if the male receiver develops an erection or ejaculates?

These are possible physical responses during agreed intimate massage, but neither is required or guaranteed. We maintain the agreed boundaries, and any change in activity requires fresh consent.

Q31. Will it be awkward if I am heterosexual or have never touched another man intimately?

Not at all. You do not need to identify as gay or bisexual, and you do not need previous male-to-male experience. The course teaches respectful, confident touch without making assumptions about your orientation.

Q32. Do I have to kiss, receive intimate touch or participate sexually?

No. Your role is to learn and practise the agreed massage techniques. Kissing, reciprocal intimacy or activity outside the lesson plan is never assumed or required.

Q33. Can the course help me explore attraction to men without committing to a sexual experience?

It can offer a structured educational setting to learn about touch and personal comfort. It is not a test of sexual orientation, and you never need to do anything to establish an identity.

Q34. What if I have erectile difficulties, take medication or feel anxious about performance?

You do not need to achieve an erection to take part. We can adapt the learning to your comfort and discuss how relaxation and communication affect responsiveness. Persistent erectile difficulties or concerns about medication should be discussed with a healthcare professional.

Q35. What hygiene and sexual-health precautions are followed?

Clean hands, short nails, fresh linens, suitable products and clear communication are important. Please disclose relevant allergies or health concerns beforehand. We avoid intimate contact if anyone has symptoms of infection, skin irritation or pain; massage is not a substitute for sexual-health advice.

Q36. Do I need to disclose a sexual-health concern before attending?

Please let me know privately in advance about any symptoms, infections, skin conditions or other concerns that could affect safe hands-on practice. We can discuss postponing particular activities or adapting the lesson. You need not share unrelated private medical information with a volunteer.

Q37. Can I stop or change my mind during an exercise?

Yes, at any point, without having to justify your decision. Consent is ongoing, applies to each person separately and can be withdrawn immediately.